Il volume raccoglie rispettivamente, le Relazioni e le Comunicazioni presentate nel Convegno romano organizzato in onore di John W. Hayes a poco più di venti anni dalla pubblicazione del suo famoso volume Late Roman Pottery, che ha costituito una pietra miliare per gli archeologi impegnati nello studio della tarda antichità. I cinquantaquattro contributi, articolati in analisi di singole classi, sintesi a livello regionale e presentazioni di siti o contesti, configurano un primo manuale delle produzioni ceramiche della penisola nel periodo della transizione tra tardo antico e alto medioevo, oggetto negli ultimi anni di un dibattito a tutto campo, nell'ambito del quale le testimonianze della cultura materiale occupano un ruolo di primaria importanza. La pubblicazione accorpa in un unico volume la prima edizione realizzata in due tomi

Al tema della Ceramica Altomedievale in Italia è dedicato il V Congresso di Archeologia Medievale, che si è svolto - come i precedenti - a Roma nella sede del Consiglio Nazionale delle Ricerche nei giorni 26 e 27 Novembre 2001 e del quale il presente volume raccoglie gli Atti, costituiti da 23 contributi di alta qualità scientifica. Il congresso si è proposto di presentare dei bilanci regionali di sintesi e degli aggiornamenti puntuali sulle ceramiche in uso in Italia nell'altomedievale e specificamente nel periodo compreso tra l'VIII e l'XI secolo, da un lato quindi escludendo gli estremi esiti tardoantichi di VI-VII secolo e dall'altro arrestandosi al momento in cui appaiono quelle innovazioni tecniche che aprono una nuova epoca nella storia della ceramica italiana. Se ne è ricavato un primo sguardo globale sull'argomento, un originale panorama della situazione degli studi, basato su rigorosi scavi stratigrafici, classificazioni accurate e raffinate analisi archeometriche dei materiali, e attento alla totalità dei tipi ceramici presenti nei diversi contesti e periodi. Pur tra tante differenze, sono emerse alcune realtà consolidate e alcune linee di tendenza convergenti.

Presents excavation data and pottery finds from the stratigraphy underneath the cathedral of Siena. The surveys were conducted between 2000-2003. The ultimate goal is to trace a view of the settlement types and economic framework that has affected the hill of the Cathedral from the Classical age to the late Middle Ages.

In the last twenty years scholarship on late antique and early medieval Ravenna has resulted in a certain number of publications mainly focused on the fields of architecture, mosaics and archaeology. On the contrary, much less attention has been paid on labour - both manual and intellectual - as well as the structure of production and objects derived from manufacturing activities, despite the fact that Ravenna is the place which preserves the highest number of historical evidence among all centres of the late Roman Mediterranean. Its cultural heritage is vast and composite, ranging from papyri to inscriptions, from ivories to marbles, as well as luxury objects, pottery, and coins. Starting from concrete typologies of hand-manufactured goods existing in the Ravennate milieu, the book aims at exploring the multifaceted traditions of late antique and early Byzantine handicraft from the fourth to the eighth century AD. Its perspective is to pay attention more on patronage, social taste, acculturation, workers and the economic industry of production which supported the demand, circulation and distribution of artefacts, than on the artistic evaluation of the objects themselves.

Maskwork is a new way of looking at the art of masks and mask-making: a unique combination of ethnography, design and practical advice. Jenny Foreman's book for teachers and practitioners of drama, art, design and technology grew out of a research bursary from the UK's National Society for Education in Art and Design. They received her report with great enthusiasm as "one of the very best projects . . . likely to make a valuable and useful contribution" to both specific and cross-discipline school and college courses as well as to adult performing groups. The first part explains the anthropology, nature, use and meaning of masks around the world, from prehistory to modern times. Richly illustrated with colour and black-and-white photographs, this section introduces the ethical implications of free use of masks which have ethnographical connections - an important aspect completely neglected elsewhere. The second part comprises eight theme workshops, including theory, background and instructions for mask-making, supplemented by photographs of assembly and use by groups of people from all age-ranges. Materials are inexpensive and easy to acquire, while line drawings aid step-by-step construction. A bibliography and reference section helps readers go on to even greater understanding and achievements.
