Related to, but distinct from, the hypothesis that specialization promotes speciation is the hypothesis that speciation in itself generates specialization. Futuyma & Moreno (1988) The title of his most famous book notwithstanding, Darwin dealt little with how new species come into being (Mayr, 1942 , p. 147).

Speciation is the evolutionary process by which populations evolve to become distinct species.The biologist Orator F. Cook coined the term in 1906 for cladogenesis, the splitting of lineages, as opposed to anagenesis, phyletic evolution within lineages. Charles Darwin was the first to describe the role of natural selection in speciation in his 1859 book On the Origin of Species.

An adaptive radiation is a burst of evolution, creating several new species out of a single parent species. As when we discussed species richness, it is useful here to think of uninhabited "islands" of habitat, though in this case, the islands merely need to be uninhabited by the species in question.
